

Taylor, Geoffrey

= Trinity College Oxford
in 4 out 62 more

June 1915
(b1)

TRINITY COLLEGE,
OXFORD.

June 27.

Dear Mr. Falconer,

I have had several talks with Vincent Mearns and have told himof my intention to apply for the position as thathouse which will doubtless be open when the building is finished. He advised that I write to you in the matter. My intention is to be a pleasure.

This position would also give the director of that house (if that be his name) an ~~additional~~ authority over the students and a standing in the outside world.

There is a possibility of my being here in

September when I would like to have an opportunity of seeing you on the subject.

If any doubt there are numbers detail to be changed and this letter is rather to bring myself to mind than to decide.

With best wishes & regards and also the University and Wellsment. Yours sincerely

Ernest

Farmer

was to stay here for two years, that is one year for now, but owing to recent developments it is extremely probable that I shall delay going home until 1914.
I know that the building has been promised long before that but at the same time consider it probable that the promise will not be carried out.
From what I hear the prospect up to the present is not remarkably good builders always seem to lay anything from one to two years behind their promises. Some further information would be necessary to me to know what it is exactly that you desire, but from my present knowledge the only condition which I think it advisable to put forward is that I (or another candidate) should have a position in the staff and some work to do there. I imagine that the Hart House work would not monopolize the whole of one's time and academic duties would